Ahron Weiner is a fine art and documentary photographer who has traveled Eastern Europe extensively, documenting both the remnants of a disappearing Jewish heritage, and a modern-day pilgrimage of Jews returning to rural Ukraine. In addition to being featured in numerous galleries, books and magazines in the US and abroad, Ahron's work has shown at the Heckscher Museum of Art as part of the 2010 Long Island Biennial, a solo show at the Philadelphia Museum of Jewish Art, and as a 140' long public art installation at the 2010 DUMBO Arts Festival.
